

WHERE:

Brooklyn is the most populated of the 5 administrations of the city of New York. It has a population of approximately 2.6 million people.

It became part of the city of New York in 1898, but in spite of this, it still keeps its own identity. Brooklyn is on the western tip of Long Island. The only land border is with Queens, on the north-east. It's separated from Manhattan, which is on the north-west, by the salt water tidal estuary known as East River.

THE REQUEST:

For the residential building object of the works, we were asked to supply a pressurization system capable of ensuring the necessary water pressure for all the 58 apartments spread over six floors.

We installed 4 e.sybox and 2 e.sytwinn: in addition to reducing space requirements by 50% when compared with traditional systems, these products can also communicate to each other through the wireless network.
